ABOUT THE MAJOR:
The business administration program at Transylvania offers a broad-based education for successful careers and graduate work. The program integrates knowledge from all areas of business and allows you to apply those concepts to solving real problems faced by companies and organizations.

Depending on your choice, the courses prepare you for a range of opportunities, from starting your own business to joining a Fortune 500 company. The business classes, along with the general liberal arts courses required of all Transylvania students, provide a well-rounded education that can best suit your interests.

A distinguishing characteristic of the program is the opportunity to specialize in one of four subject areas: management, marketing, finance or hospitality. All concentrations give you the analytic and strategic skills necessary for your career choice. These concentrations develop your analytical and creative abilities by having you complete upper-level projects with local companies. Lexington is a thriving business center that boasts operations such as Lexmark International, J. M. Smucker Company, Tempur-Pedic International, Fazoli’s Restaurants, Clark Material Handling, Valvoline and Procter & Gamble. This strong economy combined with Transylvania’s convenient location in the heart of the city translates into a wide variety of internship opportunities for you.

INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITIES:
Lexmark
Alltech International Corporation
Tempur-Pedic International
J.M. Smucker Company
Valvoline
Procter & Gamble
WKYT-TV
Lexington Legends minor league baseball team
Buffalo Trace Distillery

“Practical application makes Transylvania’s business administration program different from those that focus almost exclusively on business theory and case studies. Transylvania’s students have worked on projects with the Kentucky Horse Park, the Bluegrass Hospitality Group, the Lexington Visitors and Convention Bureau and many other organizations in the area.”

Julia Poynter
associate professor of business administration
